Mary Gersten, VP of Training for Global Cash Flow Network, announced today the new online video series and first video "MoneyCan Buy Happiness" about the relationship between success and happiness.

Tempe, AZ (PRWEB) June 17, 2008 -- Mary Gersten, VP of Training for Global Cash Flow Network, announced today the new online video series and first video "Money Can Buy Happiness" about the relationship between success and happiness.

"I wanted a creative way to show people that pursuing success is not all about materialism. Having more money can give you the opportunity to pursue dreams and goals that can bring you to a greater level of happiness," said Gersten. "Too many people believe that it's wrong to pursue success. They believe that people who do pursue success are doing so just because they love money."

Mary Gersten's video series will teach people of all backgrounds, who may or may not have started their own businesses, that while money is not the only component of happiness, it can certainly play an important role in creating happiness.

"I know for myself, my real drive to pursue success came from a desire to be financially independent, in order to have more freedom of choice romantically. I didn't want to feel pressured to stay in an unhappy relationship just to maintain financial security," said Gersten. "I know there are other people out there who could really make major changes in their lives just like I did, if they found success. I want to show other people the path to a greater level of happiness, just like I've found."

In light of the current mortgage crisis and recent employment cutbacks, many people may believe their dreams are now permanently out of reach.

Mary knows money can't buy happiness. But she is committed to showing people that the real key to success is to be driven by a determination to reach their goals and make their dreams come true.
