“The Human Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane” from Christian Faith Publishing author John H. Dumke, Sr. is a look at how people often feel spiritually prepared for an event, then experience feelings of avoidance once the event is upon them; just as Jesus, as the son of man, did in the garden at the foot of Mount Olive.

(PRWEB) September 18, 2017 -- “The Human Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane”: a gripping look at Jesus as the son of man, experiencing humanity before crucifixion. “The Human Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane” is the creation of published author, John H. Dumke, Sr., who gives thanks and praise to God for the many blessings in his life.

Published by Christian Faith Publishing, John H. Dumke Sr.’s new book is a captivating look into the human soul of Jesus Christ, correlating the experiences and decisions made by Jesus to present day. John H. Dumke Sr. challenges the reader to see how the lessons Jesus learned can affect follower’s decisions today.

For a time and a purpose, Jesus put on the cloak of humanity and felt as people do today. Jesus wept for the suffering of others and for the impending trial and anguish that was coming. Jesus was ready to rescue all humanity from Satan’s lair. But first, as the human son of man, Jesus’ own humanity had to be overcome in the garden of Gethsemane before accomplishing the godly task.

Often people have events in life that they feel spiritually prepared for. Yet, when the trial presents itself, people often try to avoid it. Jesus prayed three times to God to have the horrific event taken and to end the suffering. In the end Jesus accepted it for all people and for the joy beyond.
