AutismOne Announces First-Ever Chiropractic Pediatric Continuing Education Credit Program with Emphasis on Autism

Groundbreaking 24-credit continuing education program for chiropractors to serve children with autism comes to Chicagoland in May 2018!

Los Angeles, CA (PRWEB) October 09, 2017 -- AutismOne is tremendously excited to announce an innovative program to help more children with autism and their families. Chiropractic practitioners are blazing new trails in pediatrics, neurology, neuroplasticity, and multisensory integration, pushing the understanding and possibilities of greater health potential for these children. This first-ever chiropractic pediatric CE program, with an emphasis on autism, will open the door to more chiropractors serving this precious group of children, taking the daunting fear out of this neurodevelopmental disorder and replacing it with optimism and hope.

AutismOne Online Media Director Candyce Estave said: “As a chiropractor, you’ve already displayed the courage to pursue a better way for your practice and your patients. You’ve shown your patients how supporting the healthy terrain and flow of the body underlies maintaining good health. But what about what’s called ‘autism’? How do you help the multitude of children and families who would love to seek your services for that? You can learn how at the AutismOne 2018 Conference!”

Chiropractic emphasizes the inherent recuperative power of the body to heal itself when it is free of nervous system interference and given the right conditions. Led by Steve Tullius, DC, the Chiropractic Pediatric Continuing Education Credit Program will bring together the best information from the chiropractic and other healing communities to prepare the practicing chiropractor with up-to-the-minute information, confidence, and resources to help children with autism get better. The CE program is co-sponsored by Sherman College of Chiropractic.

Dr. Jeanne Ohm, chiropractor since 1981 and director of the International Chiropractic Pediatric Association since 2002 says, "This year’s AutismOne Conference will offer essential fundamentals in caring for children with these special needs. I encourage all chiropractors to expand their practices and offer their vital services to this growing population in such dire need."

Professionals from other scientific disciplines are also welcome to attend.

CE Program Dates: Thursday, May 24 through Saturday, May 26, 2018 (general conference runs May 23-May 27, 2018)
Place: Westin Lombard Yorktown Center, Lombard, IL (25 minutes from Chicago O’Hare International Airport)

Come celebrate the positive energy at the AutismOne Conference's sixteenth year!
