DAN Boater First Aid Kits Now Available to Recreational Boaters

DAN Boater’s online store is now stocked with marine first-aid kits for every boat and cruising style.

DURHAM, N.C. (PRWEB) November 20, 2018 -- When an injury or illness occurs at home, there’s easy access to the medicine cabinet, an emergency clinic, and 911. At sea, however, medical attention is rarely close by, creating the need to be more self-sufficient. That’s why having a marine first-aid kit that’s well-stocked, up-to-date, and at-the-ready is critical.

To assure they have the proper tools onboard to handle a medical emergency, recreational boaters can turn to the emergency professionals at DAN Boater. This world premier travel safety association boasts 38 years of handling medical emergencies around the world—including more than 10,000 emergency medical evacuations, over 100,000 emergency calls fielded, and more than 300,000 medical resource hours on duty.

DAN Boater’s online store is now stocked with marine first-aid kits for every boat and cruising style. First aid kits are not one-size-fits-all and making the right choice depends on several factors. For example, anglers, day sailors, coastal cruisers, racers, and long-distance voyagers each have different needs based on the distance and duration of their travels. The makeup of the crew and passengers also plays an important role. Will there be kids on board? Does anyone have specific health issues—like heart problems, pulmonary diseases, etc.?

Whether its for treating minor injuries such as stings, sunburns, and cuts or for handling more significant injuries and illnesses while on the water, boaters can find the first aid solution they need at DAN Boater.

There are 8 different kit styles available in the new DAN Boater Travel Store. Some of the most popular kits are:
