Insurance Experts Explain Why Car Insurance Is More Expensive In Some States

LOS ANGELES (PRWEB) January 03, 2019 -- Carinsurancehints.com has launched a new blog post that explains the main reasons why car insurance is extremely expensive in some parts of the United States.

This blog post explains the main reason why Michigan is, for the fifth year in a row, the most expensive state. The legislation is the one causing financial disadvantages. More exactly, the state’s “no-fault” unique system that grants the victims of an accident unlimited financial compensation.

A high number of uninsured and underinsured drivers will also make the insurance costs soar. The blog post also explains why and gives 2 states as examples.

A high number of people means more cars. Thus, more chances of being involved in accidents and making claims. People living in metropolitan areas are charged more, based on this simple fact.

Criminality is also a top rating factor. Areas where riots, vandalism and car theft are a common occurrence are very expensive, from an insurer’s point of view. New Mexico’s capital city, Albuquerque, is for the second time on the row the country’s No. 1 in auto theft. That is the main reason why coverage is expensive in this state.
