Sanford Health to host World Scientific Congress of Golf in 2021

Golf Science has selected Sanford Health to host the tenth World Scientific Congress of Golf 2021 in Sioux Falls, South Dakota. Leaders from Sanford Health and the Sanford Sports Science Institute will present at the conference and share their state-of-the art lab and teaching facilities with presenters from around the world.

ORLANDO, Fla. (PRWEB) January 23, 2019 -- Golf Science has selected Sanford Health to host the tenth World Scientific Congress of Golf 2021 in Sioux Falls, South Dakota.

The conference is scheduled for September of 2021. Presentations, workshops and keynote addresses centered on golf science and research will take place throughout the Sanford Health campus including Great Shots and the Sanford Sports Science Institute Golf Research Lab in the Sanford POWER Golf Academy at Great Shots.

Leaders from Sanford Health and the Sanford Sports Science Institute will present at the conference and share their state-of-the art lab and teaching facilities with presenters from around the world.

“Golf Science has done an incredible job of bringing the top minds in golf science and education together with golf professionals and enthusiasts to translate the latest research and technology to practice, and it is an honor to host this prestigious conference,” said Lisa MacFadden, Ph.D., director of the Sanford Sports Science Institute. “We are excited to welcome the WSCG to Sioux Falls and show the world the incredible research in golf taking place at Sanford Health.”

The World Scientific Congress of Golf was founded in Scotland in 1990 to bring together researchers, professionals, and interested golfers in the areas of the golfer, the golf course, and equipment and technology.

“One on behalf of the Board of Golf Science, we are thrilled to be working with Sanford Health on the 2021 WSCG,” said Kerrie Evans, Ph.D., chair of the board at Golf Science. “The conference, steeped in tradition, is internationally recognized as a collaborative forum that brings together researchers, educators, coaches and those who just love the game to share and disseminate the latest research with a particular focus on translating the science into practice.”

Previous conferences have been in St Andrews, Scotland; Phoenix, Arizona; the Gold Coast in Australia and most recently in Abbotsford, Canada.

The addition of the World Scientific Congress of Golf strengthens Sanford Health’s dedication to the game. Sanford Health is the title sponsor of the Sanford International, a PGA TOUR Champions tournament. Great Shots, a golf-entertainment facility is scheduled to open this fall at the Sanford Sports Complex. The Sanford POWER Golf Academy is a comprehensive golf program that brings together skill work with sports science, physical therapy and strength and conditioning. The Sanford Golf Junior Tour is a summer tournament series for high school and college golfers.
