Car Insurance Will Reimburse Drivers For Damage Caused By Natural Hazards

Cheapquotesautoinsurance.com (https://cheapquotesautoinsurance.com) announces a new blog post, “Natural Hazards That Can Damage Your Vehicle”

LOS ANGELES (PRWEB) February 01, 2019 -- Cheapquotesautoinsurance.com has launched a new blog post that explains how various natural hazards can damage a vehicle and what car insurance policies will reimburse the owner.

Natural disasters can do a lot of damage to the vehicles. In many cases, the damage done to a vehicle is so severe that it is declared a total loss. Drivers will need to purchase comprehensive insurance if they want to be reimbursed for the costs to repair or replace a vehicle damaged by various natural hazards:

- Tornadoes. Drivers who live in states affected by tornadoes, know very well how devastating they are. A tornado can damage a vehicle in several ways. Vehicles can be picked up in the air and tossed hundreds of yards away, or they can be bombarded by the falling debris.
- Hurricanes. Flooding the interior of a vehicle and destroying its internal components is just one of the ways hurricanes can damage a vehicle.
- Hailstorms. Hail can do significant damage to a policyholder’s vehicle. If the car owner doesn’t protect his car by storing it in a garage, then these little ice lumps can damage the car’s windshield, windows or event dent its roof.
- Earthquakes. In case of a major earthquake, vehicles can suffer damage in multiple ways. Either if a tree falls over, or a sinkhole swallows it, the only insurance that covers the vehicle from losses caused by this unpleasantries is the comprehensive insurance.
- Lighting storms. Although rare, lighting can hit a policyholder’s vehicle. The damaged done to a vehicle hit by lighting can range from simple burn marks to electrical damage that can lead to a fire.
