James C. McElroy’s Newly Released “The Bear” is a Defining Tale of a Determined Boy’s Journey Through the Woods that Test his Resilience and Character

“The Bear” from Christian Faith Publishing author James C. McElroy is an exemplary read that shares a young woods-wise boy's adventure that teaches life lessons on bravery and courage.

MEADVILLE, Pa. (PRWEB) February 15, 2019 -- “The Bear”: a riveting account of a young boy’s determination to overcome the challenge of Bear Mountain and himself. “The Bear” is the creation of published author, James C. McElroy, a teacher, principal, and assistant superintendent of schools in New Jersey with a doctorate in education from Rutgers University.

McElroy shares, “Will Cogswell, a woods-wise boy of twelve, is spending the summer with his grandparents deep in the woods of Washington's Cascade Mountains. His grandparents are owners of the resort, “Bridal Veil Falls Lodge.” Two lodge guests, Jaime and Petey, challenge Will's abilities as a woodsman in an effort to get him to lead them to the top of Bear Mountain. Will gives in to the visiting boys mocking, and the three set out on what will become a life-changing experience. Bear Mountain lives up to its name, and all three boys find themselves in a frightening highly dangerous situation. The harrowing experience teaches Will some valuable lessons. Don't try to be someone different from who you really are. More importantly, Will is reminded that a person of honor always keeps his word.”

Published by Christian Faith Publishing, James C. McElroy’s new book also exudes with the thought-provoking notion of honor as a pivotal virtue that every man must possess.
