Virtual Vocations Reveals 25 Trending Remote Jobs Most Sought for by Jobseekers

In their latest report, Virtual Vocations, the web’s No. 1 hand-screened, all-telecommute job board, reveals the most sought-after job titles that remote workers searched its database for so far in 2019.

TUSCON, Ariz. (PRWEB) April 30, 2019 -- Virtual Vocations, the web’s No. 1 hand-screened, all-telecommute job board, has revealed the most sought-after telecommute jobs so far in 2019.

In the company’s latest report, “2019 Trending Remote Jobs: 25 Telework Options for Jobseekers,” Virtual Vocations reveals the most popular job titles that remote workers searched for on its database so far this year.

The company also outlines median salaries and expected growth for the job titles featured in the report, as reported by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS). The positions span more than a dozen categories, including human services, healthcare, writing, marketing, and information technology.

“Remote job options continue to expand as jobseekers and employers experience the benefits of flexibility in the time when and place where work is completed. This is evident in the wide number of career industries in which remote jobs are available,” said Virtual Vocations CEO and co-founder Laura Spawn.

The report highlights a total of 25 virtual positions with median salaries ranging from around $30,000 to over $100,000 per year. Of the job categories included in the report, healthcare is expected to see the most growth through 2026, at 18%, according to the BLS, with care managers, patient advocates, and coaches trending as the top remote jobs in this field. Healthcare is followed by roles in human services, which are expected to see a 14% growth.

In the education industry, Virtual Vocations reports that teachers, trainers, and library professionals can expect to see the addition of 888,900 new jobs by 2026, a growth of 9%.

“Our goal with this report is to educate jobseekers about the career options that are most popular, and to shed light on the most searched for—and oftentimes, most competitive—jobs so employers can better understand who is interested in remote work and how it can fit their business models,” Spawn said.

The top 10 most-searched job titles so far in 2019, along with their respective industries, as reported by Virtual Vocations, are as follows:

1. Clinical Reviewer (Healthcare)
2. Style Designer (Design and Creative)
3. PR Marketing Assistant (Marketing)
4. Analytics Manager (Information Technology)
5. Illustrator and Concept Artist (Design and Creative)
6. Real Estate Attorney (Legal)
7. Mechanical Field Engineer (Engineering)
8. Copy Editor Quality Assurance Specialist (Editing)
9. Executive Assistant (Administrative)
10. Data and Integration Analyst (Information Technology)
