Aapryl Congratulates University of Vermont for Winning the Total Impact Portfolio Challenge

Aapryl looks forward to working with universities in the future to help them bridge the gap between theoretical learning and real-world application.

PHILADELPHIA (PRWEB) May 13, 2019 -- Aapryl, LLC a provider of predictive manager selection and portfolio construction software, congratulates the team from University of Vermont for winning the Total Impact Portfolio Challenge.

Launched in 2018 by Wharton Social Impact Initiative of the University of Pennsylvania and Good Capital Project, the Total Impact Portfolio Challenge is an annual competition to equip students with the knowledge, skills, and experience to design and execute investment portfolios that maximize impact across asset classes. The challenge included student teams from 5 universities which competed to build and design the best portfolios.

Aapryl supported the challenge by providing the students with access to their SaaS platform with manager research, portfolio construction, and risk management functionality. The students used Aapryl’s cutting edge analytics and were able to access a database of mutual funds, investment managers and market indices as part of their work.

David Andrade, the General Manager of Aapryl, commented, “We were delighted to provide Aapryl to all of the students who participated in the challenge. We look forward to working with universities in the future to help them bridge the gap between theoretical learning and real-world application. We congratulate the team from the University of Vermont on their victory and commend all of the teams for their efforts.”

Nicholas Ashburn, Senior Director at the Wharton Social Impact Initiative added, "Aapryl was a great partner for the Total Impact Portfolio Challenge, and we are very appreciative of their efforts. They not only contributed the use of their software platform, but the Aapryl team also supported with additional resources, like providing students with their expert industry insights through webinars.”
