Earth Day Special Report: Green Singles Find Love Online

PlanetEarthSingles.com, leading online green dating site helps environmentally conscious singles meet and fall in love. Earth Day 2011 marks 5 year anniversary. Niche site features over 60,000 “ecoosexual” singles.

Mt. Shasta, California (PRWEB) April 21, 2011 -- There’s some sexy correspondence happening between eco-savvy singles on a popular green dating site, www.PlanetEarthSingles.com. Conversations may include his steaming hot composting methods and her choice of eco-conscious clothing made from bamboo and hemp. There is a new “sexy” on the rise and it has nothing to do with how much money he makes or how “hot” she looks. It’s more about the size of his carbon footprint and how she turns off the water while shaving her legs.

Why is this burgeoning group flocking to online dating sites like Planet Earth Singles? Global warming, air pollution, water pollution, radiation poisoning and overpopulation are strongly influencing many people’s priorities, including the type of person they want to meet and marry. There is a growing trend of single environmentalists searching out eco-savvy partners on the Internet. Janet Ingraham, a member on Planet Earth Singles says, “It’s not so easy to ask if he recycles and buys locally grown, sustainable organic food while standing in line at the Post Office, so being able to easily find environmentally conscious men all on one site is very efficient!”

Niche online dating sites like Planet Earth Singles attract only eco-conscious singles, so the pool of members has already been “screened” just by the nature of the site. As a member, one can use specific search criteria to narrow the field of potential candidates and zoom in on those that are truly good matches. For example, one can search for non-smoking, politically liberal, conscious/spiritual, vegans.

Launched on Earth Day, 2006, Planet Earth Singles has grown quickly, proving the increasing popularity and growing demand for eco-friendly dating sites. From hard-core environmentalists to the Prius driving commuter, they all have one thing in common; the members consider themselves “green singles” looking to meet the same. On Planet Earth Singles, various members’ professions include teachers, humanitarians, corporate types, massage therapists, authors, healers, activists, doctors, business owners, environmental engineers and social workers. Members can be found in almost every country with the highest concentration in the United States, followed by The UK, Canada and Australia. There are more women than men on the site with the majority falling between 28 to 67 years old.

Jill Crosby, owner and founder of www.PlanetEarthSingles.com, an environmentalist, says she is touched by the moving success stories flooding in weekly. Surprisingly enough, many of these success stories are from people that live in different locations, sometimes even different countries. Crosby states, “Because the site offers videos, in-depth “conscious” essays, instant messaging, a comprehensive compatibility test and a risqué Sexual IQ (Intimacy Quotient), the members practically know each other before corresponding via email or talking on the phone. Once they meet in person the sparks of new love are likely to fly.”

The Conscious Dating Network, Crosby’s company, has recently launched www.ConsciousEvents.com, an events website where event promoters and facilitators can list their events, retreats, workshops, travel trips, drum circles…etc. These events are promoted to the over 60,000 singles in the Conscious Dating Network.
Crosby says the response from members and event promoters has been incredible.
