Warner Pacific College Professor’s New Book Explores Theology in the Age of Global AIDS and HIV

Warner Pacific College professor, Dr. Cassie Trentaz, has released a new book; Theology in the Age of AIDS & HIV: Complicity and Possibility.

Portland, Oregon (PRWEB) January 24, 2013 -- Dr. Cassie Trentaz, professor at Warner Pacific College, has released a new book; "Theology in the Age of AIDS & HIV: Complicity and Possibility. Part of the Content and Context in Theological Ethics Series" from Palgrave Macmillan Publishers. "Theology in the Age of AIDS & HIV," is a courageous look at how dominant theologies have participated in the creation of 'risk environments' for susceptibility to this virus and a call to action, that we would learn how to truly care for one another in this age of global AIDS and HIV.

In addition to her role as Assistant Professor of Theology, Ethics and Church History at Warner Pacific, Dr. Trentaz is an ordained minister with the Church of God (Anderson, Ind.) and served the church in the areas of youth and family ministries and leadership development at the Church of God national offices for eight years. She has taught courses in Anderson, Chicago, and a series of trainings in East Africa.

“I’m so grateful for the powerful research and challenging call to action that Dr. Trentaz explores in her new book,” said Warner Pacific President, Dr. Andrea P. Cook. “As the College learns to fully embrace our urban identity, we need bold voices like Cassie’s, encouraging us to be responsible global citizens.”

Dr. Trentaz’s research and teaching focus on the interdisciplinary crossroads of theology, ethics, church history, and religions of the world. Her extensive research commitments involve theo-ethical reflections on the ways power differentials and religio-cultural structures influence human experience and community. As an activist, Dr. Trentaz builds upon her teaching and research to explore how religious communities can speak life and enact social transformation in the midst of those realities in the complex contexts in which we live.

Founded in 1937 in Spokane, Washington, as Pacific Bible College, Warner Pacific is a Christ-centered, urban, liberal arts college dedicated to providing students from diverse backgrounds an education that prepares them to engage actively in a constantly changing world.
