Peter Senge a Learning Organization Expert Provides Exclusive Interview for SarderTV

Senge talks about his newly revised book The Fifth Discipline in addition to offering his reflections on organizational learning today

New York, New York (PRWEB) August 27, 2015 -- Peter Senge, founder of the Society for Organizational Learning, Senior Lecturer at MIT Sloan School of Management, recently spoke with Jennifer Crumpton, from SarderTV, the independent media learning channel, about a variety of subjects including his popular book, The Fifth Discipline: The Art and Practice of the Learning Organization. The Fifth Discipline was originally released in 1990 but due to continuing interest has since been revised. Senge is a well known author of books on organizational change and education including: The Dance of Change, Schools that Learn, Presence: Human Purpose and the Field of the Future, and Necessary Revolution: How Individuals and Organizations are Working Together to Create a Sustainable World.

“We are very pleased to add Professor Peter Senge's interview to our growing SarderTV collection of learning videos,” said Russell Sarder, CEO of NetCom Learning and creator of SarderTV.

“Peter Senge is a learning expert in the business world and he provides real answers and empowering recommendations for organizations as the need to focus on learning to stay competitive becomes critical,” said Sarder.

Peter Senge's belief in the need for corporations to incorporate learning into the framework of how they do business, is based on an understanding that it is the only way to stay current, competitive and bring about innovations and new opportunities. His approach to becoming a learning organization is based on the use of systems thinking centered on personal mastery, mental models, shared vision and team learning. In the SarderTV interview, Peter admits that becoming a learning organization takes work and that learning itself is hard. He provides working examples of companies that have taken the development of a learning culture to heart and have experienced growth in a tangible way including increased profitability and a more engaged employee base. Senge also discusses the changes he is seeing in the world since his book was published including the massive changes in technology, and the emergence of the global marketplace which has led to collaborative efforts between organizations including competitors. The SarderTV interview provides viewers with philosophical observations on learning in the corporate world and concrete ideas that can be used to increase learning within an organization.

SarderTV offers provoking, educational and candid interviews so that new entrepreneurs and aspiring business people can learn from them. The database is part of the international Learning Movement created by Russell Sarder to help spread knowledge and inspire a passion in lifelong learning. Operating on the premise that motivated individuals can learn from the experience, the success and the mistakes of others, SarderTV provides a unique opportunity to see and hear influential personalities talk about the subjects that matter to them. Some of the past interviewees have included Ira Neimark, former CEO of Bergdorf Goodman, Susan Davis, CEO of BRAC USA, and Dan Hoffman, President and CEO of M5

Don't miss this educational interview with Peter Senge at SarderTV.

SarderTV seeking additional leaders for interviews
SarderTV is also seeking leaders to interview and is targeting leaders from Fortune 500 companies, and exceptional public figures like Bill Clinton, Oprah Winfrey, Jim Collins, Bill Gates, Warren Buffet and many more. According to the National Venture Capital Association, more than 30 percent to $600 million this year has been invested in Web-based education. For investors seeking an opportunity to participate in a multimillion dollar idea SarderTV presents an excellent investment and is actively seeking investors. Several investors have already expressed an interest in this innovative idea. Investors interested in becoming a part of SarderTV are invited to get in touch as well, contact us at russellsarder(at)netcomlearning(dot)com.

About Sarder TV
SarderTV is a learning channel that contains a series of exclusive educational interview videos from top leaders in their industries, as well as motivational videos encouraging our public to succeed in their personal and professional lives, and many more. Russell Sarder, CEO of Sarder TV, has interviewed a series of leaders, who have shared their experiences and how they were able to achieve their success. Some of the names that Sarder has interviewed are: Ira Neimark, former CEO of Bergdorf Goodman; Russ Edelman, co-author of Nice Guys Can Get the Corner Office, Dan Hoffman, and David Hershfield, SVP Online Technology at RedCats.
Contact Information
Marketing
NetCom Learning
http://www.netcomlearning.com
+1 (212) 629-7265

Online Web 2.0 Version
You can read the online version of this press release here.