Preconference Trainings at 2017 iaedp™ Symposium Prepares Medical Professionals to Recognize, Treat Early Signs of Eating Disorders

According to a recent report from the American Academy of Pediatrics, early intervention is crucial to long-term recovery for patients with eating disorders, which is why the International Association of Eating Disorder Professionals (iaedp.com) provides preconference training workshops just prior to the opening of its 2017 Symposium at the Green Valley Resort and Spa in Las Vegas.

Pekin, IL (PRWEB) December 01, 2016 -- According to a recent report from the American Academy of Pediatrics, early intervention is crucial to long-term recovery for patients with eating disorders, which is why the International Association of Eating Disorder Professionals (iaedp.com) provides preconference training workshops just prior to the opening of its 2017 Symposium at the Green Valley Resort and Spa in Las Vegas.

The preconference trainings consist of two workshops are part of a six-hour program that provides useful, practical training for medical professionals who do not specialize in eating disorders, but are often the first medical professional to see the signs and symptoms that their patients are suffering with disordered eating.

At the 2017 iaedp Symposium, Douglas W. Bunnell, PhD, FAED, CEDS and Keesha Broome will present “Beyond the Basics: Supervision, Mentorship and Fostering Clinical Wisdom,” and John Levitt, PhD will offer “Connections: Developing an Evidence-Based Relationship with the Chronically Relapsing Client.” Each of the presenters is well known in the field of eating disorder treatment and offers years of research and clinical experience.

During their careers, many medical professionals come across patients struggling with eating disorders and related problems. Since patients are more likely to recover when disordered eating is detected and treated early, the iaedp Symposium preconference trainings are specifically designed to teach psychiatrists, primary care physicians, residents, medical students, nurses and insurance providers how to recognize, evaluate and mobilize the resources needed to treat patients with eating disorders across the spectrum of ages, scenarios and with varying degrees of malnutrition and medical comorbidity and necessity.

The preconference trainings are offered on March 22 as a separate track for an additional $75 each. For more information about early registration, go to: www.iaedp.com.

About iaedp: Established in 1985, iaedp is recognized for its excellence in providing education and training standards to an international multidisciplinary group of healthcare treatment providers who treat the full spectrum of eating disorder problems, from anorexia to bulimia to binge eating and obesity. The organization offers a rigorous certification process for those who wish to receive specialized credentials in their work with people with eating disorders. For more information about iaedp, visit www.iaedp.com.
Contact Information
Susan Lomelino
iaedp news
http://iaedp.com
+1 2145643285

Online Web 2.0 Version
You can read the online version of this press release here.