The 2019 Vegas Cosmetic Surgery Conference Dates Announced

2300 Attendees to Meet at the Bellagio in Las Vegas

LEXINGTON, Ky. (PRWEB) October 30, 2018 -- Founder of the Vegas Cosmetic Surgery Conference, S. Randolph Waldman, MD, has released the dates for the much-anticipated 2019 event. Over 2,300 people will attend the conference between June 5th and June 9th at the Las Vegas Bellagio Resort. Industry medical professionals are now able to submit their abstracts to present at the VCS, and more than 150 global experts in aesthetic medicine will be lecturing. Of the lecturers, teachers from 15 countries will provide a world perspective on cosmetic surgery disciplines. This can aid doctors in servicing a broader demographic of patients, and understanding regional trends. Those who have previously attended described the symposium as the leading multi-specialty aesthetic conference in the world, and it remains the largest independent conference on plastic surgery in North America.

For the last 15 years, the VCS has provided a comprehensive platform for practitioners in facial plastic surgery, plastic surgery, oculoplastic surgery, and dermatology to exchange information and innovative techniques with their peers. Advances emerge constantly in the field of aesthetic medicine and doctors are able to share findings and keep up with current trends through this much-anticipated annual event. After each conference, attendees are able to incorporate newer, improved methods into their practices.

Dr. Waldman and his team spend nearly a year planning each event to ensure a first-rate experience for those who attend. The main themes of the VCS are peer support in aesthetic medicine, education to provide continual improvements in elective procedures, forming professional relationships, and strengthening existing bonds.

S. Randolph Waldman, MD is a founding doctor of Waldman, Schantz, Turner Plastic Surgery Center and Skin Care in Lexington, KY. The full-service practice offers facial and body plastic surgery as well as a variety of minimally-invasive aesthetic procedures. The doctors work to combine concepts in medicine, art, and psychology to enhance both aesthetics and quality of life for their patients. The office employs a full team of medical professionals who assist the doctors with their treatments to create a comfortable patient experience. Patients are treated at a single location as the practice also features an accredited surgery center.
