A 220-Year-Old Love Story with Ties to Poland and the American Revolution is Unveiled

On Thursday, May 16th, at 7:30 pm Liberty Hall, a national historic museum located at Kean University will re-open its hearts to connect with the people of Polonia, unveiling its extensive historic archives and a beautiful love story dating back to the American Revolution.

ELIZABETH, N.J. (PRWEB) May 14, 2019 -- Liberty Hall Museum at Kean University is a national historic structure that will be opening a one-of-a-kind exhibit on May 16th at 7:30 pm. This debut will illustrate how one Polish immigrant, Count Julian Ursin Niemcewicz (1758-1841) contributed to helping George Washington and Tadeusz Kosciuszko win the American Revolution, all while falling in love with an American beauty, Susan Livingston Kean who was one of the airs to the founding fathers of New Jersey, Governor William Livingston.

Liberty Hall’s Polish archive debut will include historical letters that were shared between the Polish immigrant and his wife throughout the years of 1799-1833. The display will be inclusive of over two hundred letters written by the Count to Susan, between 1799-1833 (the year Susan died), books, journals, and other items from Niemcewicz’s life in America. Many of these archives have never been seen by the public!

Count Julian Ursin Niemcewicz (1758-1841) first came to America from Poland in 1797, when he was 39 years old as a companion to Tadeusz Kosciuszko, the leader of the Polish insurrection of 1794 against Russia. However, both men were captured by the Russians at the Battle of Maciejowice. They then both spent the next two years imprisoned in St. Petersburg. After the accession of Czar Paul I, they were released from prison and decided to come to America. Here their journey began and drew them into assisting George Washington during the American Revolution.

Count Niemcewicz spent the next ten years of his life in America. In 1799, he met his wife Susan Livingston Kean, who is a niece to New Jersey’s first elected Governor, William Livingston and contributed to the Kean family’s rich history. This is where their love story began.

For the first time ever, Liberty Hall will be connecting with its Polish roots and historical legacy through a Polish exhibit that will be on display for a private viewing for members of the Pulaski Day Parade. For the past 83 years this committee, made up of members from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Connecticut, has orchestrated the largest manifestation of Polonia in America, The Annual Pulaski Day Parade, on 5th Avenue in New York City (the 1st Sunday every October).

The Liberty Hall Museum at Kean University is only one of the many historical sites that are helping grow heritage tourism for Elizabeth, New Jersey’s newest destination. Located just minutes from Newark International Airport (EWR) and New York City. Discover Elizabeth’s rich authentic history drawing tourists to its historic landmarks, culturally diverse ethnic restaurants, as well as to its high-end outlet shopping mall SIMON: The Mills at Jersey Gardens (0% tax on clothes & shoes). To discover more about Elizabeth, NJ please visit www.goelizabethnj.com.
Contact Information
Jennifer Costa
Elizabeth Destination Marketing Organization
http://www.goelizabethnj.com
(908) 220-9643

Lynette A Zimmerman
Liberty Hall Academic Center Kean University
http://www.kean.edu/libertyhall/
(908) 737-1651

Online Web 2.0 Version
You can read the online version of this press release here.