Early bird pricing for Ensure A Quality Connection with Your CMO: An Interactive Workshop Presented by FDAnews and ValSource ends on May 31.

It’s time for a fresh approach with Contract Manufacturing Organizations (CMOs) — a quality-systems-based relationship rather than the piecemeal management style that drags down so many.

And the best way to do that is through small group interaction — discussions and case studies. Learn from peers and industry experts about the best approach, indicators and strategies to initiate a new or maintain an existing CMO relationship:

- Discuss a systemic approach to identifying and mitigating risks throughout the life cycle of a product’s development
- Outline partnership goals and communication standards
- Understand the legal requirements and limitations of a vendor relationship
- Define performance indicators that hold economic value in response to quality assessments
- Identify quality issues early in the supply chain to manage quality-related costs and risks
- Manage supplier relationship to be a partnership focused on value creation
- Set up valuable metrics for successful supplier management

Attendees will go home equipped with plans to build and manage a risk-based lifecycle model custom-tailored for all needs.

Here’s what peers have to say about the workshop:

“I enjoyed the breakout sessions the most. Wonderful exercises to help understand and challenge the materials being learned.’ - Danielle Metzger, Manager, QC, Kinapse

“I liked how interactive the workshop was.” - Christy Mazzarisi, Sr. Manager, Development Ops, Kinapse

Early bird pricing ends on Friday, May 31.
