With the help of the internet, obtaining car insurance quotes is very easy. Going from one insurance agency to another in order to obtain insurance quotes to compare is no longer required.

Drivers that want to obtain better insurance deals should follow the next tips when they are comparing multiple online quotes:

• Compare the same policies. Drivers that choose to compare multiple quotes from different websites, should ensure they are choosing the same coverage levels, same limits and the same options.
• Input the same info on all quotes. Usually, the online forms will ask data about the car make, model, year of production, installed safety devices and other car-related info. Besides that, the questionnaires will also ask personal data about the driver and his driving record.
• Provide an accurate mileage estimate. Many online questionnaires will ask drivers how many miles they are driving with their cars. Policyholders that drive fewer miles than a certain limit will be rewarded with a discount. Drivers can lie about their mileage in order to obtain this discount, but they will still have to face their insurers.
• Be honest with the driving history. Don’t try to hide negative aspects like traffic fines, at-fault accidents, or even drunk driving. Even though these aspects will increase the price of car insurance, lying about them is pointless as most insurance companies will do their own research before granting coverage to someone.
• Look for discounts. Most insurance companies will provide numerous discounts to their customers. Drivers should do a little research and see for what discounts they are eligible. Some of the most popular discounts are the loyalty discount, bundled policies discount, installed safety devices discount, good student discount, and good driver discount.
• Compare multiple online quotes. To get a better idea of how their car insurance plan might look like, drivers should consider comparing multiple car insurance online quotes. It is recommended to compare at least three quotes before deciding to purchase an insurance policy.
