What’s The Best Whole House Water Purification System? Sweetwater LLC Provides Comparison

Sweetwater, LLC, a provider of water purification systems, releases “A Comparison of Popular Whole House Water Purification Systems”. As consumers face increasingly complex and difficult choices in the selection of a whole house water purification system, Sweetwater LLC recognizes the importance of providing useful tools for selecting the best water treatment system.

Veyo, UT (PRWEB) June 18, 2010 -- When compared to four of the most popular whole house water purification systems in the United States, Sweetwater LLC’s Urban Defender® proved to be the most affordable while being equally effective as home water purification systems costing two to three times as much money.

Jeff Ewins of Thousand Oaks, California, an owner of the Urban Defender first did the comparison to other whole house water filters and suggested that McMahon provide such an analysis for others. “Our Urban Defender is the best: best tasting, best quality, and best price vs. the other systems available,” said Ewins.

James P. McMahon, ecologist and owner of Sweetwater, LLC, has provided “A Comparison of Popular Whole House Water Purification Systems” which uses 10 criteria to compare Sweetwater’s Urban Defender to four other popular whole house water filtration systems. With increasing health concerns about chlorine and chloramine in public water, McMahon has compared the features of five whole house water purification systems. “There is no difference in water quality between the Urban Defender and systems that cost two and three times as much,” said McMahon.

“I’ve provided this comparison to show how Sweetwater’s Urban Defender compares to other whole house water filters or whole house water purification systems because it is extremely difficult for the average person to figure out which water purification system is the best for their application,” McMahon said. “The key thought is that when people call me I always review their water report and make a recommendation on which of my systems will address the contaminants in their water. That’s really the only way to be sure you are choosing the water purification system that will provide you with healthy water for your family.”
