New series of books on corruption, fraud & economic crime

Colombo, Sri Lanka (PRWEB) September 14, 2011 -- At the IAACA Seminar in Shanghai, China, Sri Lanka’s leading public interest activist, Nihal Sri Ameresekere, presented his continuing series of books on combating corruption, fraud and economic crime, dealing with real case studies, to Dr. Ye Feng, Secretary-General of IAACA, promoting the implementation of the UN Convention Against Corruption.

Dr. Feng, endorsement stated, “IAACA was pleased that one of its members, Nihal Sri Ameresekere, in keeping with the objectives of IAACA, had taken a step to author and publish a series of books, dealing with real case studies in combating the global cancerous menace of economic fraud and corruption, which threatens good governance and the well being of people. The contents of this series of books would, no doubt, be of material relevance and of educational value to anti-corruption authorities globally.”

1. “UN Convention Against Corruption – To Combat Fraud & Corruption – a Cancerous Menace, with mere Rhetoric, subverts UN Convention” – Author deals with the UN Convention Against Corruption and role played by IAACA, revealing how international agencies merely pontificate on combating fraud and corruption, but continue to fraternize with fraudulent and corrupt miscreants, and also includes exposés on corruption by the author.

5. “IMF, World Bank & ADB Agenda on Privatisation - Colombo Port Bunkering Privatisation - Annulled as Illegal & Fraudulent by Supreme Court” – SC (FR) No. 209/2007 – involving UN Global Compact Company – Author exposes how large corporates compromise political leaders, at whose behest the judiciary delivered judgments, shockingly exposing that two material pages of a dissenting judgment, critical of the President being cannibalized and suppressed.

6. “Transparency & Public Accountability - Fiscal Mismanagement & Lack of Public Accountability -

7. “IMF, World Bank & ADB Agenda on Privatisation - Pillage of the Plantations in Sri Lanka” – Author deals with dubious privatisations of plantations, benefiting the privileged, causing losses to the State, devoid of accountability and the rule of law.

Nihal Sri Ameresekere previously launched this continuing series of books in Washington, at the Government Accountability Project, leading whistleblowers in US, in New York at UN Correspondents’ Association, in Miami at the 25th Annual Conference of the International Consortium on Governmental Financial Management and in Los Angeles. This continuing series of books is a part of IAACA’s program to combat corruption, fraud and economic crime.

President & CEO James D. Ratley of the Association of Certified Fraud Examiners, United States, commends stating, “I am amazed at the amount of effort and research that it must have taken to write these important works. We are adding these to our Fraud Library here at the ACFE Headquarters in Austin, Texas. They are a worthy addition to our library. It is heartening to know that we have members such as you, who give of their time and talents in the ongoing fight against fraud and corruption.”
