Quintessentially Expands Into Southeast Europe

Quintessentially, the world’s leading luxury lifestyle group, is pleased to announce that their services will be available to a new corner of the globe - Southeastern Europe. Headquartered in Zagreb, Croatia, Quintessentially Adriatic will offer the region unbeatable global lifestyle management services.

London, UK (PRWEB) May 16, 2012 -- In response to the cultural and economic development and growth of the region which includes Slovenian, Croatia, Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Serbia, Macedonia and Montenegro, Quintessentially Adriatic will manage the region from 3 offices in Croatia, Montenegro and The Kempinski Hotel, Portorož, Slovenia. The luxury 5 star superior hotel Kempinski Palace Portorož is situated directly at the Adriatic coast of Slovenia, not far from the medieval pearl, the town of Piran and less than 2 hours from Venice.

With Quintessentially proactive services already available in over 60 cities globally, assisting members with access to the best events, last minute restaurant bookings, creating mutually beneficial business opportunities, bespoke travel arrangements, and offering access to the inaccessible, Quintessentially is proud to be providing their services to new audiences.

Launched in Soho, London in December 2000 by co-founders Aaron Simpson, Ben Elliot and Paul Drummond, Quintessentially has expanded on a global scale - from Buenos Aires to Beirut, New Delhi to New York and in destinations as diverse and far-flung as Maputo, Accra, Seoul and Baku. Quintessentially Adriatic’s fixers are on hand to provide the ultimate in insider, specialist and localised knowledge. Suite reservations at Montenegro’s hotels, island hopping around Croatia’s historic isles and securing the best table at Slovenia’s most famed restaurants are merely a call away.

When one needs to escape from bustle of the city Slovenia can offer someone unspoilt nature. When exploring the streets of Zagreb Quintessentially can provide reservations at top hotels like Regent Esplanade or a suit in the luxurious Monte Mulini in Istria, while looking for truffles. From the balcony of Excelsior hotel people have a breath-taking view of centuries-old Dubrovnik’s walls. When people also need to relax or go shopping the luxury yacht marina Porto Montenegro is the right place.

In a bid to ensure only the very best service is delivered across the luxury market, Quintessentially has also launched 32 luxury sister businesses comprised of experts in every luxury division. This includes public relations, real estate, travel, luxury retail, wine, art, flowers, recruitment, private aviation and more (www.quintessentiallygroup.com).

Lara Ham, CEO of Quintessentially Southeast Europe comments:

“We are thrilled that our Adriatic offices are joining the Quintessentially family. The region has so much to offer – its home to diverse landscapes, fascinating culture and history as well as being an incredibly dynamic economic region.”

For more information, please contact:
Andraž Hafner
About the Company

Quintessentially is the leading international luxury lifestyle company. Started in 2000 as a small London based concierge service, Quintessentially has experienced a complete transformation in a decade, and currently have offices in over 60 cities around the world. The service provided to their discerning and HNW members is proactive and personalised, catering to every member’s need, from last minute restaurant bookings, travel arrangements, and access to private parties, as well as fulfilling every unusual request and successfully connecting businesses all over the world. Quintessentially can offer access to the inaccessible and can make the seemingly impossible, possible. In a bid to ensure only the very best service is delivered across the luxury market, Quintessentially has also launched 32 luxury sister businesses comprised of experts in every luxury division. This includes real estate, travel, luxury retail, wine, art, flowers, private aviation and more (www.quintessentiallygroup.com).
Contact Information
Alex Allason
Quintessentially Lifestyle
http://www.quintessentially.com/#/
+44 (0)203 073 6752 6752

Online Web 2.0 Version
You can read the online version of this press release here.